EXPATRIATION AND THE LEGAL ENTAILMENTS

In setting the premise:

There are some “patriots” out there that say that expatriation is the wrong thing to do in freeing oneself from the system. We beg to differ—herein are some legal authorities:

First, we ask that you read the definition of expatriation:

- expatriation. A voluntary change of allegiance from one country to another, effecting an absolute termination of all civil and political rights as of the date of such act. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 120

The above definition is from Ballentine's Law Dictionary, 3rd edition. Note that it refers to American Juris Prudence in regard to aliens. Now, below is the general definition of an alien that is found in a current edition of American Heritage Dictionary:

- alien. Owing political allegiance to another country or government.

Americans have never owed political fidelity to the federal government, because it is not nor ever was a true national government. Moreover, the definition of alien states one owes political allegiance to a government. With those stated facts established:

- QUESTION: Are your political rights derived from the federal government or the Federal Constitution? Answer: NO.<sup>1</sup>

Now, to evidence the fact that the federal government—i.e. the United States—is not a bona fide national government—or in other words—that it does not represent a nation, see this definition from Black's Law Dictionary, 4th edition:

- national government. A national government is a government of a single state or nation, united as a community by what is termed the social compact, and possessing complete and perfect supremacy over persons and things, so far as they can be made the lawful objects of civil government. A federal government is distinguished from a national government, by its being the government of a community of independent and sovereign states, united by compact.

To further the evidence that the United States is not a country or a nation, the Articles of Confederation—which were overwritten by the Constitution of the United States—are essentially a compact by the several states of the American union. Now, in retrospect, take look at this definition which pertains to The War Between the States:

<sup>1</sup> Originally, the slaves of the South were given their political rights from the federal government; however, at the same time everyone in the Union was duped into the same unification agenda of the Neo-Roman Empire due to their ignorance.

- rebels. A term loosely but incorrectly applied to the Confederate Forces engaged in the Civil War. 30 Am J Rev ed Insurr § 2

Why were the Confederates not rebels?... There was no breach of allegiance to their state governments or nations, nor did they commit treason against the American Union to a foreign power! They had a lawful war pursuant to the doctrines of international law. As a matter of law it was not even a civil war—it was a national war.

Now, you may be saying to yourself: Well, if one expatriates, he would have to leave the United States or country. For some reason this is the trend of thought, however—as we have stated herein above—the United States is not a country under the principles of international law; the United States is a federation of countries. It is only a country internally under the color—or should we say—the fraud of the Fourteenth Amendment. Under International Law your state is your true and lawful country and nation. As proof of evidence, see this definition from Bouvier's Law Dictionary, 1856:

- COUNTRY. By country is meant the STATE of which one is a member.

Now, how can you owe allegiance to all states if they are all separate countries?

The above was referenced to lay the groundwork for you to understand the following:

Firstly, the United States is an incorporation or federation of countries, it is not a country. How can one have the nationality of a federation or corporation?

Secondly, the devious Fourteenth Amendment establishes a so-called dual citizenship.<sup>2</sup> And because the Fourteenth Amendment establishes a so-called dual citizenship—and as it would violate due process of law after the installment of the amendment—the term noted as “citizen of the United States” can only mean a United States citizen or a federal citizen when used in law authorities. Accordingly, we must ask these two questions:

- 1) Can a person participate in elections without being a United States citizen under the Fourteenth Amendment? Answer: NO. Then he does not have political rights unless he is claiming to be a citizen of the United States—does he? And, if one were to participate, would he not be deemed a citizen of the United States? Answer: YES.
- 2) Because the new federal government has set-up a new system of law which is grounded in Roman Civil Law under the 14th Amendment that establishes rights that are repugnant to the common law, by expatriating would one not be giving-up these rights, e.g. Title 42 suits? Answer: YES.

Now look at the definition of expatriation again to see if the foregoing facts fit:

- expatriation. A voluntary change of allegiance from one country to another, effecting an absolute termination of all civil and political rights as of the date of such act. 3 Am J2d Aliens § 120

So are you still saying that “expatriating” is not the proper, legal way to remove yourself from the bondage of the governmental system under the Fourteenth Amendment? Are you saying to yourself that the Fourteenth Amendment is a fraud? Well, these questions are asked... and remember ignorance of the law is no excuse is a legal maxim:

1) Have you signed any government form or participated in any activity that states you must be a “citizen of the United States” or a U.S. citizen, e.g. voting in any or all state or federal elections or sign any Social Security or other benefit/taxation form that requires you to be a U.S. citizen?

2) Because only U.S. citizens can vote, and under established international doctrines of law a child carries the nationality of his father, did your father participate in any U.S. election in his lifetime? <sup>3</sup>

Now we must ask: After a 130+ years of the 14th Amendment system being in place, do you really think there is not a presumption or established fact that you are regarded as a citizen and national of the United States by government agencies and judges?

And in closing, below is the legal definition of ALIEN from the legal reference that is not common to the legal profession that many of the judges in America use:

- alien. One who, having been a “citizen of the United States,” has expatriated himself. Ballentine’s Law Dictionary, Third Edition

Now look at this definition established by the insurgent United States Congress:

- Title 8 USC § 1101(a)(3). The term “ALIEN” means any person not a citizen or national of the United States.<sup>4</sup>

Any questions?... And accordingly, we must ask...

What state/government do you owe political allegiance to?

IN A FINAL NOTE:

The Coalition refers to expatriation as Correction of Nationality, which is correcting or declaring one’s status to be that of the de jure law of the Union; such law incorporates Rightful Political Status and the Common Law in contraposition to that of the Roman Civil Law that is established under the 14th Amendment governmental/political system. In essence, you are removing yourself from the Marxist country that is present under the Fourteenth Amendment political system and returning back to your true country. This is the only absolute form of emancipation from state and federal governments.<sup>5</sup> A state national is the rightful (de jure) sovereign, political power of his country... You have the absolute right to claim what has been taken from you under fraud.

4 Movies like Men in Black—you know, the one where US government agents chase around what the average American perceives to be aliens—is just a movie that taunts the truth in stealth. The people who have orchestrated this governmental system like to do such things to mock the average American.
